ImageTool Software is a total service provider for document management solutions. We help our customers operate more productively and cost effectively and streamline their business processes by making their information readily and easily accessible.

At ImageTool, our goal is to make all of your business information easily accessible. Whether it's providing software or services, we strive to meet the individual needs of all of our clients. Working together, we will help you identify your needs and design a solution that will help you meet those needs. ImageTool will provide you with quality products, service and support.

Whether you need to convert your paper to images or proprietary images to industry standard formats, ImageTool has the expertise and experience to make the conversion virtually transparent.

Image Conversion

Whether you are getting out of a proprietary system, or wanting to create a database of scanned images, the ImageTool team can migrate the data for you. The ImageTool team has been selected for many projects to convert images from other systems into an industry standard format for the images and data. These many and diverse projects have allowed the ImageTool team to develop innovative technology. A typical project may involve thousands of images or millions of images, either way no project is too small or too big. ImageTool has extensive experience converting images from proprietary systems such as FileMagic, Cimage, DocuPack, FileNet and others.

Backfile Conversion

Converting all of your company's paper into an electronic storage and retrieval system is significantly more time-efficient and cost-effective than handling the paper on a daily basis. You will immediately benefit from reduced storage space, enhanced security, greater accessibility and superior data searching. ImageTool will scan your paper records to non-proprietary images that can be indexed, stored and retrieved digitally. Backfile conversion can take place at your location or offsite at our secure facility.

Data Conversion

Perhaps you're considering updating your legacy system or software, but hesitate because you have years of stored information. We can convert and move the data from one system to another, saving you valuable time and money. Our staff has the technical expertise required to mine the data from your existing application and migrate it into another. ImageTool has successfully completed data conversion projects involving accounting systems, contract management system, project management systems and more.
